It's So Hard To Say Goodbye

By Tasha Fierce on July 25, 2010

Today is my last day blogging with the lovelies here at Feministe. It's been fun, and I hope you've found my posts interesting at the least, maybe infuriating, hopefully not boring. I'll be taking a brief vacation and staying "home", as it were, at my blog Red Vinyl Shoes, and then starting August 1 I'll [...]

The Coming Race War

By Tasha Fierce on July 24, 2010

Well, Andrew Breitbart, smearing Shirley Sherrod in order to refute the NAACP's resolution against "racist elements" in the Tea Party turned out to be a pretty bad idea. Yes, you cost her her job, but she's making black people look good. It's too bad you're not like, a journalist, or something, and did some digging [...]

The Impermanence of Light

By Tasha Fierce on July 21, 2010

Tonight I did something I do less and less of these days — I came home and didn't jump on the Internet. Didn't rush through my meal to hurry up and check my e-mail only to be inundated with the day's nauseating blog comments. Didn't skip reading the book I'm almost finished with to see [...]

Look! Black People Are Totally Racist Too!

By Tasha Fierce on July 20, 2010

Fox News dropped this bombshell in the early hours of July 20 (or the late night of July 19, as it is for me). Apparently someone was able to dig up a video of a black USDA worker telling an audience of other black people about having to help a white farmer keep his land [...]

When You Have To Say It: Tea Party Racism \(Again\) and You?

By Tasha Fierce on July 18, 2010

Why I continue to follow links relating to the Tea Party and whatever problematic tripe they're spewing on that particular day, I don't know. I only have a certain amount of anxiety medication allotted each month and I can't afford to waste it. When I saw that the NAACP called the Tea Party a bunch [...]

[UPDATE: I will not be submitting the anthology to Seal Press, so the question asked in this post has been answered. Read the comments for more details.] In working on the anthology I'm editing/contributing to, Occupied Bodies: Women of Color Speak on Self-Image, an issue has come up over whether or not I should include [...]

Outlaw Clothing: Burqas, Islamophobia and Women's Rights

By Tasha Fierce on July 14, 2010

The ongoing quest of the French government to preserve their country's "secular traditions" came to the fore once again Tuesday when the lower house of France's parliament voted to ban women from wearing any face-covering veil, such as the infamous burqa or the less "extreme" niqab — a move obviously targeting French Muslim women, of [...]

Is White Really the Combination of All Colors?

By Tasha Fierce on July 13, 2010

This “family feud” has been mentioned in blog post after blog post, so I’ll keep the history short. Big “feminist” site Jezebel posts about female comedy writers not being represented in the staffing of The Daily Show. Big “feminist” site XX Factor posts about how hypocritical it is for Jezebel to post something controversial to [...]
